TRAINING OBJECTIVES:

Understanding what opioids are, their availability, how they are abused across socio-economic brackets, and their perception by age group is the first step in combating the problem. The second step is knowing how to utilize resources such as naloxone (Narcan), Act 139, and the new statewide standing order, all of which are important tools in this fight. The final step is putting this knowledge to use in our communities.

"I found this workshop to be highly engaging, educational, and informative! This answered a lot of questions that I had about opioid use and abuse, as well as the use of Narcan and how it works. David took a highly complicated and often misunderstood issue and made it very understandable, while presenting his material in an extremely engaging manner. I came away with a wealth of information and a new respect for those who are dealing with these issues every day."

—David H. Mueller, Director, Lancaster County Office of Juvenile Probation
